FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE AGAINST ROBERT CONNOR

CRUEL AND INHUMAN TREATMENT ALLEGED; MAY BE PRELIMINARY TO SETTLEMENT OF STATUTORY CASE

Mrs. Florence Connor of Marshfield, wife of Major Robert Connor, co-defendant with Miss Bertha Gurtler, of this city in the Shorewood love nest case now pending in a Milwaukee court, has filed suit for divorce on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment, it became known today.

Mrs. Connor's action, which is not expected to be contested is regarded as a preliminary to the settlement out of court of the statutory charge pending against Major Connor and Miss Gurtler, who it is rumored will be married as soon as permitted to do so by the Wisconsin statutes after the divorce.

The action for divorce was served on Atty. B. M. Vaughan, divorce counsel for Wood county, by Attys. Deming and Deming of Marshfield some time between March 10 and 20, it is reported. It is not considered likely that it will come before the court before the completion of the heavy calendar of criminal cases which are now pending. Mr. Vaughan would not comment on the service upon him.

Mrs Connor, in her plea, it is stated, asks for divorce on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment and cites Major Connor's continued absence from home. She asks no alimony, but requests the custody of the two daughters, age 10 and 19. She states that she has sufficient funds to provide for them adequately.

The case against Major Connor and Miss Gurtler is on the calendar of the district court in Milwaukee for the first week in April, but it is expected that another continuance will be obtained, pending the solution of the divorce action.

Goggins, Brazeau & Goggins, attorneys for Major Connor would not discuss the matter, nor would Deming & Deming of Marshfield, attorneys for Mrs Connor. They would neither deny nor confirm the commencing of the divorce action.

Found John Magnuson Guilty

Reprinted by Courtesy of The Milwaukee Journal

This picture of the twelve men and women who brought in the verdict which will send John Magnuson to life imprisonment for the murder of Mrs. Clementine Chapman was taken shortly after the opening of the trial.

Murder In First Degree Is Verdict

John Magnuson was found guilty of murder in the first degree for the slaying of Mrs. Clementine Chapman, on Dec. 27, in the famous "Christmas Bomb" outrage by the jury in Circuit Court returned at 11:15 o'clock this morning.

The verdict was read by Judge Byron B. Park and when the words "Guilty" came from his lips Magnuson broke into a wail and cried bitterly moaning "My God, My God, it is a mistake." He was taken to the jail where he is in charge of Sheriff Bogie who is in the cell with him to prevent any possible self destruction.

The defendant was seated at the table with his Chief Counsel Charles E. Briere, when the jurors were escorted into the court room by the bailiffs. His counsel leaned over to him saying, "What do you think the verdict will be?" Magnuson maintaining his same self-possession replied, "Not Guilty." He had confidently expected a verdict acquitting him.

As the jurors filed into the court room, none wearing a smile and some with eyes red from weeping, Magnuson turned in his chair to view them. The verdict carried by William H. Peters, Town of Hansen, the foreman, was handed to Sheriff James A. Bogie and he handed it to Judge Park. The defendant eyed the Sheriff as he proceeded with the paper carrying the message which will send him to prison for life. Judge Park with his usual deliberate manner opened the sealed verdict and read it first to himself.

Looking up at the jury and then to the paper he read back to the jury their verdict. As he completed his reading the defendant broke down burrying his face in his arms on the table before him. This was his first break in all the months he had been under suspicion and arrest charged with the most dastardly crime in the annals of crime in Wisconsin.

No members of the defendant's family were in the court room. But few people were there and James A. Chapman, one of Magnuson's victims occupied his usual chair in the center of the court room.

MAGNUSON BLAMES P. O. INSPECTORS

SAYS THEY LIVED UP TO THEIR REPUTATION OF NEVER FAILING TO GET THEIR MAN AND THAT THEY "FRAMED" HIM.

"What can I say? I'm convicted, they have got me, but I can look you or any other man square in the eye and say without flinching that I'm innocent of that crime. It was a frame-up from the beginning to the end with the postal inspectors living up to their reputation of never failing to get their man. You know as well as I do that it has always been said that they get their man and if they haven't got the evidence they make it and frame up on their victim," stated John Magnuson, convicted by the jury for sending the Christmas bomb to the J. A. Chapman home, when interviewed by a Tribune reporter shortly after noon.

Expected Favorable Verdict

"I was either expecting a disagreement or a verdict of not guilty and when I was told that the jury had reached a verdict I was expecting to walk out a free man. It came as a great shock but what can I do?"

When questioned as to whether he was holding any animosity against T. W. Brazeau, the man who was responsible for the verdict of guilty, he said, "No, why should I? He was only doing his duty as he was appointed by the Judge."

"If I was the guilty party why did I allow the authorities to come and go at will and why did I leave everything on the workbench in my shop. The tools were there, the shavings were never touched and even the disputed shotgun shell which was found sawed off in my shop was explained by the fact that my little boy had taken the shell, after his brother's return from a hunting trip, and was hammering at it with a nail.

Gives His Version

"In regard to the pipes, joints and handwriting there was a great deal of contradictory evidence especially in regard to the variance in hardness of the steel and the thickness of the pipe. I know and you know that the chemical reaction of ink on smooth paper is different from that on rough wrapping paper," stated the convicted man.

When asked how he knew this he refused to answer for a moment and then said, "I wrote to an expert who gave me that reply."

Members of the Magnuson family, when interviewed, would not express themselves in regard to the verdict and would not make any definite statement in regard to their plans for the future.

Verdict Is Just Bomb Victim's Husband States

"The jury did their duty," James A. Chapman, himself a victim of the Magnuson bomb explosion and husband of Mrs. Clementine Chapman of whose murder Magnuson was found guilty, told the Tribune following the announcement of the verdict this morning.

Mr. Chapman, who has attended every session of court since the opening of the trial, made the following statement.

"If ever a man had a fair trial, John Magnuson did. The jury did their absolute duty. Never at any time since the bomb was sent to me have I ever changed from my original opinion that John Magnuson was guilty of the crime. No power on earth could ever have convinced me to the contrary.

"I am returning to my home this afternoon to rest up for a short time and will be back again to Wisconsin Rapids when the county board convenes."

Late Break-up Of Ice Will Set New Record Is Belief

RECORD FOR THE PAST TWENTY YEARS IS APRIL 11; HIGH WATER TO BE "LOW" THIS SPRING

With winter's grip, with its subzero temperatures, holding on with bull dog tenacity, every prospect points to the belief that the breaking up of the ice in the river and the coming of high water will be postponed for beyond the usual time and with every indication pointing to a low stage of high water, is the opinion of local riverman who have watched the antics of the vampish Miss Spring as she has won over old King Winter every year for the past many years.

The fact that the continued cold weather, intermingled with the few warm days has melted the snow in a gradual fashion leads the riverman to believe that the water will not reach a very high stage this year.

Walk on Ice

Oliver Trudell, for the past twenty years dam tender at the Consolidated mill, has kept the records of the breaking up of the ice for the past 18 years. In all this time the break-up has never occurred later than April 11. This year, with the ice estimated as being about two feet thick at the present time, the break-up is expected to occur not earlier than the middle of April. Pedestrians have been walking across the ice, but mill officials claim that this is unsafe owing to the alternate melting and freezing that has been predominate this spring, which has a tendency to rot the ice to a great extent. They urge all to keep off the ice as it is felt that a calamity might occur if the practice was continued without control.

Winter Not Ready To Loosen Grip Yet Prophets Say

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, Ill. Mar. 31—A smiling sun to temper Winter's chilly conquest of Spring that threatened to make Easter a day of misery for numerous women was conceded by the weather forecasters today for the middle west, but in announcing that concession to participants in the annual dress revue, they told of a cold wave sweeping down from the Arctic regions that would carry chilling temperatures and frost as far south as northern Florida.

Cold is "Remarkable"

The present cold wave, accompanied by temperatures declared "remarkable for this season of the year" by the district weather bureau, brought a record of 10 degrees to Chicago this morning, 9 degrees colder than any previous March 31, although the cold in the northwest has begun to moderate.

The crest of the present wave was to pass directly eastward, to be followed by gradually moderating temperatures. The forecast said the weather Sunday will become unsettled through the north and central por-

Marshfield Woman Suing New York Judge, Report

A report from New York states that Miss Mary McMillan of Marshfield has filed suit against Judge Elbert Page of the Appelate Division of the Supreme Court of New York for the recovery of $2,500 which she alleges was left her by a grandmother who died thirty years ago. Miss McMillan, who is a teacher of music at Marshfield, is said to be a distant relative of the New York judge.

Efforts to reach Miss McMillan to obtain a confirmation or denial of the report failed.

Prosecutors Pleased At Jury Verdict

Elation over the verdict finding John Magnuson guilty of the murder of Mrs. Clementine Chapman, and confidence that it was just, were expressed by T. W. Brazeau, special prosecutor, and District Attorney R. R Williams in statements to the Tribune today. Both attorneys praised the jury for its courageous and intelligent handling of the case.

Chas. E. Briere, defense counsel, when requested to make a statement to the Tribune, replied: "I have nothing to say."

"Of course I am elated over the verdict," Atty. Brazeau said, "because I am firmly convinced that it is just, and that the law has been vindicated. I do not want the public to give me more than my share of credit in the preparation and presentation of this case. I want now to acknowledge so that the people of this county will know that there was wonderful and efficient and untiring work done by the United States Post Office Inspectors, J. P. Niles, R. M. Unemployment In State Still Rapidly Decreasing

Madison, Wis.—Unemployment is on the wane, according to the weekly report of the eleven public employment offices maintained by the state industrial commission. The excess demands for help over applications for work is constantly growing greater, the report shows. A total of 2868 persons were given employment through the commission last week, more than double the number that were placed during the corresponding week last year.

Centenary of the birth of William Hart, noted American portrait and landscape painter.

Asks for Poll

When the jury replied affirmatively that it was their verdict, Atty. Briere attempted to quiet Magnuson saying, "Wait John, it is not over yet" and turning he addressed the court requesting that the jury be polled.

Judge Park hesitated a moment making some reference to the certainty of the verdict and then addressed each juror with the question if it was his verdict and her verdict as read, each and every juror replying that it was the verdict. As the poll was half completed, Magnuson again showed signs of weakness, swaying in his chair, his head bobbing up and down and turning from side to side apparently beyond control.

As if something within him snapped, Magnuson turned again to the jurors as the poll was being completed and "nerved himself" through the trying but fruitless ordeal.

Remarks Unintelligible

During his fits of despair after the verdict was read by the court, Magnuson made several remarks which were unintelligible. Grasping at his throat, his face taking on a palor and then flushed with excitement he attempted to untie his neck tie still wreathing as if suffering untold torture he muttered several remarks inaudible and garbled, which were not understood. The staring as if in space, the defendant sat there motionless for a brief time. He started waving his arms about upsetting a drinking glass on the table muttering to himself, while Judge Park thanked the jury for their verdict.

Jury Was Moved

Looking first at the defendant a moment and then at the jury, Judge Park opened his remarks. "Ladies and Gentlemen of the jury," the judge said in addressing them. "I congratulate you on a duty faithfully done, seriously done. Indeed it was a very serious duty of citizenship in bringing in this verdict which required courage of the highest order. You have well earned the thanks of the citizens of this county."

"The meager reward which you received as jurors in this case is not to be compared with the reward due you from your fellow citizens."

He then dismissed the special veniremen and told all members of the regular panel to return to the court room for further duty on April 3rd, at 2 o'clock.

JUSTICE DONE

It is when that the average citizen is entrusted with a responsibility equal to that placed in the hands of the jury in a case where the verdict must decide the fate of a human life.

This responsibility is especially heavy in a case such as that decided in circuit court here this morning where it was impossible to find an actual witness to the crime. In this particular case, however, the jury's task was made less hard by the remarkable presentation of the case by the state.

Every angle of the case was investigated with the utmost thoroughness, experts acknowledged the best in the United States were called in, and when it came time to reveal the facts in court, evidence was piled up on evidence and every possible loop-hole was plugged until to those who attended regularly the sessions of court, guilt seemed a matter of absolute certainty. The masterful handling of the case was such as to impress even the casual observer and men experienced in the prosecution of criminal cases asserted that they had never seen a case handled as thoroughly and effectively as was this one.

Judge Park thanked the jury for returning a just verdict, seriously and bravely. We join with the judge in the praise of these twelve men and women for a difficult duty conscientiously carried out. But first we thank T. W. Brazeau, who as special prosecutor in the case brought to justice the man guilty of one of the most cold blooded and brutal crimes in the history of the state of Wisconsin.

FIERCEST BATTLE OF SESSION WILL FOLLOW RECESS

PROGRESSIVES SPLIT BY LIQUOR WEDGE: LA FOLLETTE DECIDES TO HOLD ALOOF FROM CONTEST

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis., Mar. 31—When the legislature resumes business after the Easter recess, it will be to engage in a bitter contest affecting every phase of legislation now under consideration, according to general opinion here. Leaders of all groups say that the situation is most tense, as a result of the governor's injection of the prohibition issue into the general tax fight, and of the factional differences within the Progressive Republican ranks.

Developments have taken such a turn that it is now reported authoritatively that Senator Robert M. La Follette will remain away from Madison, but will leave his son, Robert M. La Follette, Jr., here to keep him advised of the situation. The younger La Follette, chairman of the Republican state central committee, announced on his return to Washington, that he would be back in three weeks to spend a considerable period here.

Booze Issue First

The open fight is expected to break within the Progressive ranks sometime during the next three weeks. It will first come out into the open when the Sachtjen bill for restriction of the search and seizure section of the Severson law, comes up for consideration April 11. Governor Blaine's message is accepted by the wets as an indorsement of this proposal, and a bitter fight is in prospect.

Assemblyman Herman Sachtjen, author of the principal wet bill, and Governor Blaine's floor leader, says that the wet and dry issue is predominant before the Wisconsin legislature, surpassing tax legislation in its political importance. He says that the prohibition issue will inevitably divide the Progressives and that it is in recognition of that division that the governor has decided to throw his support to those opposing prohibition. It is significant, in his opinion, that Governor Blaine took occasion to tie up the wet and dry problem with the tax program.

Members of the joint committee on finance, which has introduced the governor's bill at his request, say that they will be able to bulletin the proposal for hearing during the second week in April. This will mean the opening of another of the hard-fought battles of the session.

To Shelve Rose

Personalities are to be injected into this controversy through the governor's recommendation that the tax commission be reduced to a one-man commission. This step is taken generally as an attempt on the part of Governor Blaine to get rid of Judge Charles D. Rose as a member of the tax body.

Senator La Follette opposes this plan. It is authoritatively reported here, and his son was advised by the governor it is said, that he would not push this proposal. The outcome of the fight that would be precipitated by an attempt to force this issue, could not be foretold.

Then, when the governor's tax bill reaches the floor of the senate, members of the upper house say that a bitter fight will be urged. The Socialist and Stalwart members of the upper house are practically united in their opposition to the Blaine bill, and have some Progressive votes as well, so that they can claim 10 votes against the measure.

Should the governor be able to overcome objections and get his bill through the senate, the speaker in the assembly and some other Progressive assemblymen say that they would take the floor against the plan. They claim that it is unworkable.

If defeated in his tax motion, the governor will be faced with attempts to get the Paul and Severson tax bills through the legislature. Both of these legislators [illegible] the governor will give them assurance that he will not veto their bills if passed, they will [illegible] to get his active support.

Personalities are to be injected into this controversy through the governors recommendation that the tax commission be reduced to a one-man commission. This step is taken generally as an attempt on the part of Governor Blaine to get rid of Judge Charles D. Ross, a member of the tax body.

Senator LaFollette opposes this plan it is authoritatively reported here, and his son was advised by the governor, it is said, that he would not push this proposal. The outcome of the fight that would be precipitated by an attempt to force this issue, could not be foretold.

If defeated in his tax move, the governor will be confronted with attempts to get the Dahl and Severson tax bills through the legislature. Both of these legislators say, however, that unless the governor will give them assurance that he will not veto their bills if passed, they will not try to get favorable action on them.

By injecting the wet and dry problem into the tax issue, Governor Blaine has made the division sharp in the legislature, members say. They see consequences from this action that will affect all of the important proposals before the legislature.

There is a very evident opinion now that the legislature is in such a jumble that all hope of a short session has passed.

Milladore Man Sold Mortgaged Cow; Faces Trial

Thomas Haessly, a town of Milladore farmer was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Roy Sweet and arraigned before Judge E. N. Pomainville on a charge of unlawfully selling a cow upon which there was a chattel mortgage. Nicholas Kelnhofer, also a farmer in the town of Milladore and holder of the mortgage was the complaining witness.

Haessly, who was represented by Atty. D. D. Conway, was brought before Judge Pomainville late yesterday afternoon, and took an adjournment until April 18. Bonds were fixed at $300 and were furnished by A. R. Gebert, Milladore village butcher to whom Haessly is alleged to have sold the cow. District Attorney R. R. Williams appeared for the state.

The defendant, it is alleged, sold the mortgaged cow to Mr. Gebert. The latter was notified that there was a mortgage on the animal and a Milladore constable took possession of it and placed it in his barn. Later the cow was stolen and taken to the Soo Line stock yards. Replevin papers were gotten out and another constable went to serve them, but in the meantime the animal had been loaded into a car and placed under the railroad seal, and hence could not be seized.

According to Mr. Tradell the dates of the annual break-up of ice since 1905 is as follows: 1905, March 28; 1906, April 6; 1907, March 26; 1908, March 24; 1909, April 11 (the record); 1910, March 30; 1911, March 24; 1912, April 5; 1913, April 7, 1914, April 7; 1915, April 8; 1916, April 3; 1917, Apr. 6; 1918, March 27; 1919, March 22; 1920, March 25; 1921, March 20; and 1922, March 26.

At this time last year there had already been a material rise in the water level, sufficient so that the wet machines at the Consolidated mill had been put in operation on March 18, and were followed two days later by the grinders. This year, even at this late date, there has been no appreciable increase in the level, and officials of the company who have been keeping in touch with the situation see no prospect of enough power to operate the grinders until the middle of next week at the earliest, while a further continuance of the present unseasonable cold wave would of course delay the rise until still later.

Cannot Write But Wields A Fast Knitting Needle

London—The world's knitting champion is an Irish woman who cannot speak English or write a line and she does not plan to make a lecture tour of the United States. She is just plain Mrs. McShane, of Garrick, County Donegal, Ireland, and until a few weeks ago had never been on a train.

Mrs. McShane, despite these few deficiencies, won the first prize of a 50-guinea cup and £50 in a knitting contest with hundreds of other women, recently held in one of London's largest department stores. She won the prize by completing a jumper in 28 hours and 25 minutes. The second prize was given to a young girl who completed the work in 31 hours.

American Capital To Aid In Rebuilding Angora

Constantinople—British commercial interests are giving much attention to the efforts of American business houses to obtain concessions from the Kemalist Government. The Federation of British Industries, in a letter to its members, points out the growing activities of American capitalists at Angora, and urges them not to overlook this economic invasion of Asia Minor.

The federation mentions the so-called Chester project for the construction of Angora as a modern capital, and says the plan calls for the building of an entirely new town, quite independent of the old capital. The city is to be constructed on wholly modern lines, embodying electric supply, telephones, broad avenues, skyscrapers, modern drainage and water supply and new government buildings.

Another American concern, it is stated, has made a proposal for the erection in different places in Anatolia of special workshops for the manufacture and repair of agricultural implements. To put this scheme into operation it is proposed to float a Turkish company 90 percent of whose capital would be supplied by Americans and the remainder by Turks, while the personnel of the factories would be recruited from native labor. This proposal, it is said, has already been adopted in principle by the Ministry of National Economy.

May Use Guard To Battle Weed Peril On Farms

Madison, Wis.—Use of the Wisconsin national guard to fight the weed peril in the state is to be proposed by Assembly George Nelson, chairman of the highway committee and president of the Wisconsin Society of Equity, he said today.

Mr. Nelson declared that the farmers of the state have never received any benefit from the maintenance of a military force which they have paid to support. He believes that some of the protection that has been afforded cities in the past, should now be accorded farms.

At his suggestion, a special legislative committee appointed to study the weed problem and make recommendations for some change in the state weed law, has seriously discussed the advisability of using the national guard to go into the country and fight the noxious weeds that are devastating farms in some sections of the state.

Assemblyman Peterson declared his intention of submitting an amendment to the appropriation bill for the guard, making its members available for use in the war on weeds.

Sir William Robertson Nicoll, noted London editor and journalist, began his writing career at the age of fourteen.

Musical Opportunity to be presented Tuesday April 3rd.

In compliance with numerous requests Miss Hedwig Hein, director of the Stevens Point Conservatory of Music and teacher of piano and violin and Miss Ruth Jeremy, instructor in voice, will be in Wisconsin Rapids at the Daly Music Store to meet all persons interested in piano, violin and voice. Miss Hein and Miss Jeremy plan to meet their Wisconsin Rapids pupils every Tuesday.

Hedwig R. Hein received the greater part of her training in piano playing from the great Russian master, Arthur Friedheim, a pupil of Liszt, the noted American pianist, Wm. H. Sherwood, also a Liszt pupil, and the renowned Swiss pianist, Rudolph Ganz, a Busoni pupil.

She had the advantage of personal instruction in violin playing with the noted artists, Leon Marx and Harry Dimond.

Miss Hein's teaching experience was gained in Lombard College, Galesburg, Ill., where for three years she was director of the piano and violin department and later as a member of the Faculty of the Hinshaw Conservatory and of the Sherwood Music School, Chicago.

For several seasons Miss Hein was first violinist with the Northwestern University Orchestra. Her knowledge of the great symphonies, overtures and other orchestral work is both comprehensive and intimate.

The vocal instructor offered at the conservatory by Miss Ruth Jeremy is the Barbereux System of Constructive Voice Production and Unified Diction. This system based upon scientific principles and gives as definite results in the evoking out of each vocal problem as a system of mathematics.

This work liberates all nerve and muscular tension, eliminates all consciousness of registers results in an even scale and adds an octave at least to every voice. Thus singing becomes as easy and natural as speaking.

Miss Jeremy has a B. S. degree in education from the Kansas State Teachers College where she was an assistant teacher in the Public School Music Department. Later she studied the Barbereux system of voice production with Mme. M. Barbereux-Parry of Chicago. She travelled three seasons in Lyceum and Chautauqua under Redpath & Standard Lyceum Companies and sang recently in the Rapids at the Johnson & Hill style show.—Advertisement.

Citizen's Bank Has Installed Burglar Alarm System

Through the installation of a new electrical burglar alarm system the Citizens National bank is now fully equipped to not only forestall any attempts on a night raid, but are as well protected as possible in regard to a daytime holdup.

The system is installed throughout the vault and is composed of many wires, which, when touched by a maurauder, instantly sets an alarm off which rings for 15 minutes. If, at the end of that time the alarm does not frighten the burglar away, the same thing is repeated if any more of the fine wires are touched.

Beneath the desk of each window is an alarm button that may be pressed with the feet, which is supposed to give protection against daylight holdups such as occured in Marshfield. This system has been found to be efficient in other banks where attempted holdups have been thwarted by bank officials who were able to press the button while their hands were extended in the air.

Mrs. Leo Crump is visiting at the Albert Emerson home in Port Edwards.

Mrs. Verne Holmes and Mrs. F. E. Holmes spent Thursday with Mrs. Perry Booth at Nekoosa.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Holmes will entertain Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Carlson and two children for Easter dinner.

The First Easter

In the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.

And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow:

And for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.

And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified.

He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay.

And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead: and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you.

And they departed quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy; and did run to bring his disciples word.

And as they went to tell his disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came and held him by the feet, and worshipped him.

Then said Jesus unto them, Be not afraid: go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall see me.—St. Matthew, XXVIII:1-10.

Go to Church on Easter

Sixty-five Million Americans, professing membership in the churches or Sunday schools of the nation, will go to church services tomorrow—Easter Sunday.

This leaves forty-five millions unaccounted for.

Of these forty-five millions—just a little less than half the population of the country—comparatively few are agnostics or atheists. Most of them are people who through carelessness, or indifference, or diversion, have neglected the religious side of their nature.

Easter commemorates the resurrection of Christ from the sepulchre. It comes in the spring, when everywhere about us the spirit of resurrection is symbolized by nature. It should suggest to every one of us that this is the time for the resurrection of our spiritual natures.

The Christian church is the open door to realization of resurrection. It stands waiting to develop us spiritually. This would be a far better world to live in if all of us were attending church regularly.

Go to church on Easter. You'll feel a lot better if you do. Your soul needs food, too, you must know. Satisfy your spiritual hunger. Go to church on Easter.

By Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick
Pastor, First Presbyterian Church, New York

Go to church on Easter!

That is not the whole of Christianity—not by a long sea-mile! Being a Christion extends through seven days every week, twelve months a year, and it affects a man's whole life, from his secret thoughts to his business methods and his citizenship.

H. E. FOSDICK

Because the finest elements in our American life came from the influence of Jesus Christ, and Easter is the festival of His victory. Because civilization's deepest need is the triumph of real Christianity and Easter is Christianity's rallying-day.

Because this is one of the most spiritually restless generations in human history, and the message of Easter—a victorious spiritual life which can conquer trouble, sin and death—is the message that modern men and women need.

Because you yourself have the old human needs for faith in God, inward power to carry on, and hope of life eternal, and Easter should have a personal message for you.

Go to church on Easter!

By Rt. Rev. Joseph Schrembs
Bishop of Catholic Diocese of Cleveland

"Christ is risen from the dead. Alleluiah! Alleluiah!"

The Christian world rejoices. It steps out of Lenten season of penance and self-denial into new spiritual life of supernatural grace and joy.

BISHOP SCHREMBS

Is YOUR soul attuned to the spirit of Easter? Is it dead or dormant, or is it vibrant with the glorious realization of harmony with the risen Savior? Examine your conscience: you will find the answer.

You cannot find happiness here or hereafter without religion. You cannot be at heart indifferent to your Creator; you cannot deceive yours if that you can go without Him.

In the midst of life we are in death: no man knows the day or the hour for which can guarantee that he cares.

You are entitled to the comfort, the inspiration, the salvation of religion. Aye, you need it for the daily problems of life, and you need it even more for the important hour of your death.

Accept the grace that God offers you through His Church.

Go to church on Easter!

Murder In First Degree Is Verdict

who was with C. W. Johnson brother in law of the defendant. As he saw them he exclaimed:

"My God! I am Guilty!"

Mr. Johnson tried to comfort him and encourage him, grasping the convicted man by the hand said good bye to him. The daughter, Ethel, hearing of the verdict broke out in cries which echoed throughout the building and sobbed on the shoulders of her uncle as her father was lead across the street to his cell.

Under Guard

Confined in a cell in which Sheriff Bogie stationed himself, Magnuson was permitted to see the members of his family. Later in the day Sheriff Bogie was relieved by Deputy Sheriff Sweet. The sheriff's office will keep a constant vigil over the prisoner until he is sentenced by Judge Park and taken to prison, where he will serve out the rest of his life for the slaying of Mrs. Chapman.

As a special precaution against the possibility of self destruction Sheriff forks or other silverware or dishware forks o rother silverware or dishware be given the prisoner that could be used for suicidal purposes.

Jurors Thanked

After the verdict was delivered, Judge Park, Dist. Atty. Williams and other officials and spectators mingled with the jurors in their rooms to congratulate them upon their verdict and their courage in reaching the verdict, which meant the conviction of a man and his ultimate sentence to life imprisonment.

Separately speaking to the jurors, Judge Park assured them that their verdict was proper and that there could have been no other verdeit. Juror after juror thanked the judge for his assurances of approval of their verdict.

Women in Tears

Women in the jury were gathered in their special jury room packing their belongings and bidding each other good bye. They were deeply moved by the solemn occasion and by the sacred duty they had performed for the state and by the grief which their verdict caused the convicted man. Weeping, each one of the four women on the jury shook hands with Judge Park and stated that they had reached their verdict upon performance of their duty as they saw it, maintaining that it was the greatest decision they had ever rendered and relieved that the burden placed upon them to make the decision had been lifted.

Men Compliment Women

William H. Peters, foreman of the jury, commenting upon the verdict paid a high tribute to the women on the jury saying that he had never witnessed such courage of convictions by women in such trying circumstances.

Other men jurors reiterated the comment of the foreman and praised the women jurors for their clear thinking, courage and sincerity. Spectators also thronged about the women to congratulate them upon their courage.

The four women were always for conviction upon all four ballots, it was learned and their courage was said to have been an inspiration to the men on the jury.

Outcome was Obvious

Members of the jury interviewed after the case were not reluctant to talk of their verdict. Firm in their belief and certain as to the facts, certain as to the guilt of Magnuson they outlined in their conversations points which pointed with every degree of certainty to the conviction of the defendant.

Testimony of the neighbors of Magnuson as to the seeing of "strangers, the "mysterious Germans" and the "mysterious dark house" was never given any vital consideration, they stated. The greatest importance was attached to the expert testimony and proof of the facts by the scientists and the various elements of the chain of certain facts backed by evidence, which allowed them to conclude with false certainty in reaching their verdict of guilty. They generally agreed that the presentation of the case was conducted and honest and convincing that defense contentions and the statements of the defendant although absolutely contradictory of the evidence was not sufficiently convincing to merit consistent attention.

The time spent in the deliberations was declared to have been given for the purpose of giving the defendant every benefit of the doubt and to make absolutely certain that no one single fact had ever been left out of their consideration of all the testimony.

Prosecutor Is Thanked

Prosecutor T. W. Brazeau has been the recipient of many messages of congratulations from all over the county upon the presentation of a case regarded as one of the most difficult in the annals of crime in the entire Lake west. His preparations and presentation, tireless as it has been and thorough as it was created the highest respect of attorneys and laymen. Judge Park in commenting on it stated to a Tribune representative, "I regard it as the most finely prepared case and the most excellent exhibit of trial work that I have ever seen in my whole career."

C. W. Johnson, Chicago laundryman, brother in law of the convicted man met Atty. Brazeau in the judge's chamber and in the presence of another local attorney complimented Mr. Brazeau on the clean manner in which he had conducted the case, being free of bitterness so characteristic in the prosecution of criminal cases. He stated that he was satisfied with the treatment accorded the defendant by the state but declared that he was not convinced that John Magnuson was guilty of the crime and he would use his whole fortune to free him.

The public is not aware of the tremendous amount of detail and the unusual manner in which Atty. Brazeau as special prosecutor attacked the almost superhuman job of fathoming a crime of the nature of the Chapman bomb case. Confronted with a pile of junk, a scrap of paper with a disguised pen printed address Atty. Brazeau dug in with his characteristic thoroughness and developed and correlated all the pieces of the bomb, the handwriting and the fragmentary evidence which was within his possession and worked out a case against John Magnuson, which possessed no weak spots, no quicksand holes where a jury might sink through to indecision and he presented a case which no jury could possibly scorn if there was a conscientious desire among the jurors to find a verdict on the facts. He was ably assisted by Undersheriff C. W. Bluett who as special investigator from the Sheriff's office worked faithfully and unceasingly on the case and who materially assisted Mr. Brazeau in his big task.

Farm Home Of A. Bulgrin At Barnum Burns Thursday

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. August Bulgrin in the town of Barnum burned to the ground Thursday afternoon. It is thought that the blaze started from a spark from the chimney. The neighboring farmers helped the Bulgrin family to save part of their furniture and household goods, but the house was a total loss. It is stated that no insurance was carried on the home.

D. D. Conway Feeds Court Fans Friday At Noon

While attending court Friday D. D. Conway was the mark of several local citizens who expressed their belief that as "long as the people were furnishing the audience for the lawyers, the lawyers should furnish the food for the audience." Calling the bluff and jokes of the court fans, Mr. Conway drove down town and came back with three enormous bags full of eatables for the fans who were willing to go without their dinners in order to attend the afternoon session of court.

To say that the fans were willing to relieve Mr. Conway of his burden is only putting it mildly.

tion, and the members of which throughout appeared to have the courage necessary for the full performance of their duties.

"Mr. Magnuson had the benefit of a defense as thorough as possible, under the circumstances. The crime was one executed with the greatest cunning, and it required the most diligent and painstaking investigation and preparation to disclose the real perpetrator. At the close of the case, I could not possibly see how the result could be other than a verdict of conviction.

"The only cloud upon the result of the trial is the great sorrow which this verdict brings to the unfortunate family of the convicted man and for whim I have the deepest sympathy."

District Attorney R. R. Williams, stated: "I feel that the jury performed a very important duty to society with the highest degree of courage and intelligence. Every member deserves the gratitude of the people of Wood County."

Notice Of Judicial Election

Office of County Clerk,
Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., March 17, 1923.

TO THE ELECTORS OF WOOD COUNTY:

NOTICE is hereby given that at an election to be held in the several towns, wards, villages and election precincts in the County of Wood, on the 3rd day of April, 1923, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations, have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office and under the appropriate or other designation, each in its proper column, together with the question to a vote in the sample ballot below.

To vote for a person whose name is printed on the ballot make a cross (X) in the square after the name of the person for whom you desire to vote.

SAM CHURCH, County Clerk.

Information to Voters

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters:

(a) A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have endorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

(b) If a voter wishes to vote for all the candidates nominated by any party he shall make a cross or other mark under the party designation printed at the top of the ballot in the circle made for that purpose. A ballot so marked and having no other mark will be counted for all the candidates of that party in the column underneath, unless the names of some of the candidates of the party have been erased or a name shall be written in or a cross placed in the square at the right of the name or names of candidates in another column. If the voter does not wish to vote for all the candidates nominated by one party, he shall mark his ballot by making a cross or mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote, or by inserting in the name of the candidate.

(c) A voter may vote for an entire group of candidates for presidential electors by making a cross (X) or mark in the circle (O) under the party designation at the head of the party column, or he may vote for the candidates for presidential electors by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the name of each candidate for elector for whom he wishes to vote. If a voter does not wish to vote for any one or more candidates for presidential electors in the group, he may erase the name of such candidate or candidates and may write in the space provided therefor, the name or names of the person or persons for whom he desires to vote, and the cross (X) or mark in the circle (O) at the head of the party column shall count as a vote for each of the candidates in such column. If a voter wishes to vote for any candidate for president or vice-president or for any presidential electors whose names appear on the ballot, he may insert or write in the names of the candidates for president and vice-president, and presidential electors to a number equal to the number of electors to be elected, in the appropriate spaces in the blank column at the right of the ballot.

(d) A voter may vote upon a question submitted to a vote of the people by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the answer which he intends to give.

(e) The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but no more than three in all should be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

(f) After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed indorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspetcor in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box, and pass out of the voting place.

(g) A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot can have assistance of one o rtwo election officers in marking same, to be chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion, as to such person's disability.

SAM CHURCH, County Clerk.

GERMANS KILLED AS FRENCH OPEN FIRE ON CROWD

INVADERS USE MACHINE GUNS ON WORKERS IN KRUPP WORKS AT ESSEN; SIX KILLED AND TWENTY INJURED

(By Associated Press)

Berlin, Germany, Mar. 31—Six German workers at the Krupp plant in Essen have been killed and twenty injured in a conflict with the French military, says a Central News dispatch from Essen today.

The trouble occurred through the French unexpectedly proceeding to occupy certain Krupp motor works, whereupon the workers stopped the machines and went outside to offer opposition, the message states.

Troops Threatened

The officer in charge of the French tried to persuade the men to return to duty, but they refused and surrounded the troops, threatening them with attack unless they withdrew. The officer pointed out that he must carry out his order, but the workers were obdurate, declaring they would defend their plant.

Four machine guns then opened fire, adds the message, and six workers fell dead, while twenty were seriously wounded. The remainder scattered and the French then proceeded to occupy the works.

Will Expel Strikers

Duesseldorf, German, Mar. 31—General DeGoutte's proclamation that all strikers in the German railway works in the occupied zone must either go to work or be expelled, found the allies in the possession of all Ruhr and Rhine rail lines except those in the British area.

Enforcement of the order it seems, will offer transportation officials something of a problem, for approximately half a million persons, including families of the men, may be affected. It is expected that the process of expulsion will take several weeks and special transportation to the frontier must be provided.

Ten billion marks and four hundred thousand French francs which the French custom officers siezed in an automobile at Hoechst yesterday, will be used toward defraying the expenses of French troops on the left bank of the Rhine. The money was being shipped to Weisbaden by a Frankfort bank.

Ray And Buker To Race In Feature Race Friday

Chicago—Individual rivalry between Joie Ray, middle distance runner, carrying the colors of the Illinois A. C., and Ray Buker, University of Chicago divinity student, his teammate, who won from the "king of the milers" here last week, was regarded as one of the interesting athletic duels that will be fought here Friday night in the Central A. A. U. indoor track championship tournament. The two were entered in the mile run. Buker's victory over Ray was made in 4:21, considered fast time for the mile.

Rollie Williams Offered Coaches Job At Millikin

Madison—Rollie Williams, eight-letter basketball, baseball and football star of the University of Wisconsin, has been offered the position of athletic director at Millikin university, Decatur, Ill., at a salary of $4,000.

Rollie is weighing the Millikin offer with one by the Kansas Agricultural college.

Rollie has won eight letters in athletics so far, three in football in three consecutive years, three in basketball and two in baseball. A new Wisconsin record will be set if Williams wins his ninth "W" in baseball this year.

Lefty Williams Dying In Chicago Hospital

Chicago.—Claude (Lefty) Williams who was instrumental in winning championships and world's championship for the White Sox before the scandal in 1919 wrecked his career, is lying at the point of death at the Columbus hospital. He was in a state of coma Thursday night and his physicians, Dr. Kegel and Storer, have little hope for his recovery. Williams was stricken with pneumonia three days ago and his condition became serious immediately.

Baseball Players Union In Request For Recognition

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, Ill., Mar. 31—The Chicago National Baseball Players Association union of the baseball world, today by letter appealed to the National Baseball Commission for recognition and the right to sit as a representative that body.

Raymond J. Cannon of Milwaukee, attorney for the players association, directed the letter to the National Baseball Commission. The association had ceased to function when former Federal Judge Landis was appointed commissioner of baseball, it was understood.

The commission is composed of Commissioner Landis, President John P. Heydler of the National League and President Ban Johnson of the American League.

Former Point Outfielder Shows Big League Stuff

Judging from the comments of Manning Vaughn, sporting writer of the Milwaukee Sentinel, Al Simmons, the young outfielder who crashed the old apple with such wicked results during the 1921 baseball season with the Stevens Point team, is more than making good with Harry Clark's Brewers at their spring training camp at Troy, Alabama. A portion of the clipping follows:

Of the young athletes who were at Caruthersville, Mo., a year ago, the most improved player in camp is Al Simmons, pride of Rue De Mitchell and other south side boulevards.

Twelve months ago, Simmons a graduate of Milwaukee's corner lots, was as green, speaking in baseball terms, as the flag of St. Patrick. He was a big, husky youth, strong as a professional weight juggler, took a fearful punch at the ball but his baseball knowledge was nex. He lacked the baseball finish required of class AA performers—in either words looked like a diamond in the rough, but that was all.

TENNIS OFFICIALS ADD NEW TITLES TO 1923 PROGRAM

THREE NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP EVENTS ADDED TO COURT PROGRAM OF THE U. S. LAWN TENNIS ASSOCIATION

New York.—Three national championship events involving six titles in singles and doubles have been added to the 1923 court program of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

The addition of these events—the national interscholastic, national and girls' high school championships—increases to 56 the total number of titles at stake this year, a figure which represents at the greatest array of national championship in the history of the net game and gives further proof of the rapid development of the sport.

Revive Interscholastics

The national interscholastic are being revived by the U. S. L. T. A. this year after a lapse since 1915. The other two tournaments, however, are innovations and promise to widen appreciably the scope of the court game.

Particular interest is attached to the municipal tournament. Encouragement of public court playing is one of the features of this year's program under the administration of Dwight F. Davis donor of the international team trophy and president of the U. S. L. T. A. Mr. Davis was a pioneer in the development of the municipal game in St. Louis.

Local and regional tournaments are planned as preliminaries to the national municipal championships with the idea that leading players in all sections of the country may thus be selected to compete for the national titles.

The interscholastics, which probably will be held in connection with the intercollegiate championship, were first started in 1891. The list of victors until the tournament was dropped in 1915 reveals some of the most prominent names in American tennis history, a fact which has influenced officials in restoring the tournament as one means of developing new talent.

Many Title Events

R. D. Wrenn, national singles champion in 1896 and 1897 and former president of the U. S. L. T. A., won the first inter-scholastic title in 1891. Other prominent players who captured the championship on their way to greater fame included: Beals C. Wright, national champion in 1905 Maurice E. McLoughlin, national champion in 1912 and 1913; Irving C. Wright, Nathaniel W. Niles, Wallace Johnson, George M. Church and Karl Behr. The last two runners, in 1915, was won by Harold Throckmorton.

The list of other championship events on this year's record calendar includes: Men's and Women's singles and doubles on indoor, clay and turf courts; veterans singles and doubles on turf; intercollegiate singles and doubles; juniors and boys' singles and doubles on turf an indood courts; girls' singles and doubles on turf; mixed doubles on indoor clay and turf courts; and fathers and sons' doubles.

W. E. Sanderson, of the New York State College of Forestry, has a record of having planted nearly 1,200,000 baby trees in demonstration forests.

More than seven hundred letters are received by the Prince of Wales every day. Frequently his letter-bag has contained as many as fifteen or sixteen hundred.

The First Easter

In the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.

And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow:

And for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.

And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified.

He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay.

And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you.

And they departed quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy; and did run to bring his disciples word.

And as they went to tell his disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came and held him by the feet, and worshipped him.

Then said Jesus unto them, Be not afraid: go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall see me.—St. Matthew, XXVIII:1-10.

Go to Church on Easter

Sixty-five Million Americans, professing membership in the churches or Sunday schools of the nation, will go to church services tomorrow—Easter Sunday.

This leaves forty-five millions unaccounted for.

Of these forty-five millions—just a little less than half the population of the country—comparatively few are agnostics or atheists. Most of them are people who through carelessness, or indifference, or diversion, have neglected the religious side of their nature.

Easter commemorates the resurrection of Christ from the sepulchre. It comes in the spring, when everywhere about us the spirit of resurrection is symbolized by nature. It should suggest to every one of us that this is the time for the resurrection of our spiritual natures.

The Christian church is the open door to realization of resurrection. It stands waiting to develop us spiritually. This would be a far better world to live in if all of us were attending church regularly.

Go to church on Easter. You'll feel a lot better if you do. Your soul needs food, too, you must know. Satisfy your spiritual hunger. Go to church on Easter.

By Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick
Pastor, First Presbyterian Church, New York

Go to church on Easter!

That is not the whole of Christianity—not by a long sea-mile! Being a Christion extends through seven days every week, twelve months a year; and it affects a man's whole life, from his secret thoughts to his business methods and his citizenship.

H. E. FOSDICK

Because the finest elements in our American life came from the influence of Jesus Christ, and Easter is the festival of His victory. Because civilization's deepest need is the triumph of real Christianity and Easter is Christianity's rallying-day.

Because this is one of the most spiritually restless generations in human history, and the message of Easter—a victorious spiritual life which can conquer trouble, sin and death—is the message that modern men and women need.

Because you yourself have the old human needs for faith in God, inward power to carry on, and hope of life eternal, and Easter should have a personal message for you.

Go to church on Easter!

By Rt. Rev. Joseph Schrembs
Bishop of Catholic Diocese of Cleveland

"Christ is risen from the dead. Alleluiah! Alleluiah!"

The Christian world rejoices. It steps out of Lenten season of penance and self-denial into new spiritual life of supernatural grace and joy.

BISHOP SCHREMBS

Is YOUR soul attuned to the spirit of Easter? Is it dead or dormant, or is it vibrant with the glorious realization of harmony with the risen Savior? Examine your conscience; you will find the answer.

You cannot find happiness here or hereafter without religion. You cannot be at heart indifferent to your Creator; you cannot deceive yourself that you can do without Him.

In the midst of life we walk in death; no man knows the day or the hour, but none can gainsay that he cares.

You are entitled to the comfort, the inspiration, the salvation of religion. Aye, you need it for the daily problems of life, and you need it even more for the important hour of your death.

Accept the grace that God offers you through His Church.

Go to church on Easter!

Murder In First Degree Is Verdict

who was with C. W. Johnson, brother in law of the defendant. As he saw them he exclaimed:

"My God! I am Guilty!"

Mr. Johnson tried to comfort him and encourage him, grasping the convicted man by the hand said good bye to him. The daughter, Ethel, hearing of the verdict broke out in cries which echoed throughout the building and sobbed on the shoulders of her uncle as her father was lead across the street to his cell.

Under Guard

Confined in a cell in which Sheriff Bogie stationed himself, Magnuson was permitted to see the members of his family. Later in the day Sheriff Bogie was relieved by Deputy Sheriff Sweet. The sheriff's office will keep a constant vigil over the prisoner until he is sentenced by Judge Park and taken to prison, where he will serve out the rest of his life for the slaying of Mrs. Chapman.

As a special precaution against the possibility of self destruction Sheriff forks or other silverware or dishware forks o rother silverware or dishware be given the prisoner that could be used for suicidal purposes.

Jurors Thanked

After the verdict was delivered, Judge Park, Dist. Atty. Williams and other officials and spectators mingled with the jurors in their rooms to congratulate them upon their verdict and their courage in reaching the verdict, which meant the conviction of a man and his ultimate sentence to life imprisonment.

Separately speaking to the jurors, Judge Park assured them that their verdict was proper and that there could have been no other verdeit. Juror after juror thanked the judge for his assurances of approval of their verdict.

Women in Tears

Women in the jury were gathered in their special jury room packing their belongings and bidding each other good bye. They were deeply moved by the solemn occasion and by the sacred duty they had performed for the state and by the grief which their verdict caused the convicted man. Weeping, each one of the four women on the jury shook hands with Judge Park and stated that they had reached their verdict upon performance of their duty as they saw it, maintaining that it was the greatest decision they had ever rendered and relieved that the burden placed upon them to make the decision had been lifted.

Men Compliment Women

William H. Peters, foreman of the jury, commenting upon the verdict paid a high tribute to the women on the jury saying that he had never witnessed such courage of convictions by women in such trying circumstances.

Other men jurors reiterated the comment of the foreman and praised the women jurors for their clear thinking, courage and sincerity. Spectators also thronged about the women to congratulate them upon their courage.

The four women were always for conviction upon all four ballots, it was learned and their courage was said said to have been an inspiration to the men on the jury.

Outcome was Obvious

Members of the jury interviewed after the case were not reluctant to talk of their verdict. Firm in their belief and certain as to the facts, certain as to the guilt of Magnuson they outlined in their conversations points which pointed with every degree of certainty to the conviction of the defendant.

Testimony of the neighbors of Magnuson as to the seeing of strangers, the "mysterious Germans" and the "mysterious dark horse" was never given any vital consideration, they stated. The greatest importance was attached to the expert testimony and proof of the facts by the scientists and the various elements of the chain of certain facts, backed by evidence, which allowed them to conclude with definite certainty in reaching their verdict of guilty. They generally agreed that the presentation of the case was so logical and honest and convincing that defense contentions and the statements of the defendant although absolutely contradictory of the evidence was not sufficiently convincing to merit consistent attention.

The time spent in the deliberations was declared to have been given for the purpose of giving the defendant every benefit of the doubt and to make reasonably certain that no one single item had ever been left out of their consideration of all the testimony.

Prosecutor Is Thanked

Prosecutor T. W. Brazeau has been the recipient of many messages of congratulations from all over the county upon the presentation of a case regarded as one of the most difficult in the annals of crime in the entire middle west. His preparations and presentation, tireless as it has been and thorough as it was created the highest respect of attorneys and laymen. Judge Park in commenting on it stated to a Tribune representative, "I regard it as the most finely prepared case and the most excellent exhibit of trial work that I have ever seen in my whole career."

C. W. Johnson, Chicago laundryman, brother in law of the convicted man, met Atty. Brazeau in the judge's chambers and in the presence of another local attorney complimented Mr. Brazeau on the clean manner in which he had conducted the case, being free of bitterness so characteristic in the prosecution of criminal cases. He stated that he was satisfied with the treatment accorded the defendant by the state but declared that he was not convinced that John Magnuson was guilty of the crime and he would use his whole fortune to free him.

The public is not aware of the tremendous amount of detail and the unusual manner in which Atty. Brazeau as special prosecutor attacked the almost superhuman job of fathoming a crime of the nature of the Chapman bomb case. Confronted with a pile of junk, a scrap of paper with a disguised pen printed address Atty. Brazeau dug in with his characteristic thoroughness and developed and correlated all the pieces of the bomb, the handwriting and the fragmentary evidence which was within his possession and worked out a case against John Magnuson, which possessed no weak spots, no quicksand holes where a jury might sink through to indecision and he presented a case which no jury could possibly scorn if there was a conscientious desire among the jurors to find a verdict on the facts. He was ably assisted by Undersheriff C. W. Bluett who as special investigator from the Sheriff's office worked faithfully and unceasingly on the case and who materially assisted Mr. Brazeau in his big task.

Farm Home Of A. Bulgrin At Barnum Burns Thursday

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. August Bulgrin in the town of Barnum burned to the ground Thursday afternoon. It is thought that the blaze started from a spark from the chimney. The neighboring farmers helped the Bulgrin family to save part of their furniture and household goods, but the house was a total loss. It is stated that no insurance was carried on the home.

D. D. Conway Feeds Court Fans Friday At Noon

While attending court Friday D. D. Conway was the mark of several local citizens who expressed their belief that as "long as the people were furnishing the audience for the lawyers, the lawyers should furnish the food for the audience." Calling the bluff and jokes of the court fans, Mr. Conway drove down town and came back with three enormous bags full of eatables for the fans who were willing to go without their dinners in order to attend the afternoon session of court.

To say that the fans were willing to relieve Mr. Conway of his burden is only putting it mildly.

"Mr. Magnuson had the benefit of a defense as thorough as possible, under the circumstances. The crime was one executed with the greatest cunning, and it required the most diligent and painstaking investigation and preparation to disclose the real perpetrator. At the close of the case, I could not possibly see how the result could be other than a verdict of conviction.

"The only cloud upon the result of the trial is the great sorrow which this verdict brings to the unfortunate family of the convicted man and for whim I have the deepest sympathy."

NOTICE is hereby given that at an election to be held in the several towns, wards, villages and election precincts in the County of Wood, on the 3rd day of April, 1923, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations, have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office and under the appropriate or other designation, each in its proper column, together with the question to a vote in the sample ballot below.

To vote for a person whose name is printed on the ballot make a cross (X) in the square after the name of the person for whom you desire to vote.

SAM CHURCH, County Clerk.

Information to Voters.

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters:

(a) A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have endorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

(b) If a voter wishes to vote for all the candidates nominated by any party he shall make a cross or other mark under the party designation printed at the top of the ballot in the circle made for that purpose. A ballot so marked and having no other mark will be counted for all the candidates of that party in the column underneath, unless the names of some of the candidates of the party have been erased or a name shall be written in or a cross placed in the square at the right of the name or names of candidates in another column. If the voter does not wish to vote for all the candidates nominated by one party, he shall mark his ballot by making a cross or mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote, or by inserting in the name of the candidate.

(c) A voter may vote for an entire group of candidates for presidential electors by making a cross (X) or mark in the circle (O) under the party designation at the head of the party column, or he may vote for the candidates for presidential electors by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the name of each candidate for elector for whom he wishes to vote. If a voter does not wish to vote for any one or more candidates for presidential electors in the group, he may erase the name of such candidate or candidates and may write in the space provided therefor, the name or names of the person or persons for whom he desires to vote, and the cross (X) or mark in the circle (O) at the head of the party column shall count as a vote for each of the candidates in such column. If a voter wishes to vote for any candidate for president or vice-president or for any presidential electors whose names appear on the ballot, he may insert or write in the names of the candidates for president and vice-president, and presidential electors to a number equal to the number of electors to be elected, in the appropriate spaces in the blank column at the right of the ballot.

(d) A voter may vote upon a question submitted to a vote of the people by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the answer which he intends to give.

(e) The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but no more than three in all should be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memoramlum to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

(f) After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed indorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspetcor in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box, and pass out of the voting place.

(g) A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot can have assistance of one o rtwo election officers in marking same, to be chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion, as to such person's disability.

SAM CHURCH, County Clerk.

MICHAEL SIR NORMAN JANET

Vendetta begins between Michael Sayers, noted criminal and SIR NORMAN GREYES, once of Scotland Yard, when Sayers' beautiful housemaid, JANET, saves him from Sir Norman by shooting dead the officer sent to arrest him. Janet becomes Sayers' wife and accomplice. While Sir Norman is living at his country house the police ask him to help capture a criminal whom they believe to be at the head of a dangerous gang. On his way to London, Greyes' car is stopped and he is shot through the shoulder. Greyes asks Janet to dine with him. Janet accepts. Acting upon Michael's command Janet puts poison in Sir Norman's coffee, but regrets her act and purposely upsets the cup. Sayers tells this episode:

I was at St. Pancras Station to meet Gorty and Metzger on their arrival in England. I saw the seven black tin boxes with brass clamps, handed out of the guard's van and placed on the roof of a taxicab. I knew as though it were foredoomed that the contents of those boxes would be mine before the week was out. I felt certain, too, that one at least of the two men would fight to death before I obtained possession of them. They were well worth it, however.

It was a foggy night, and I lingered with perfect safety on the outskirts of the little throng of people who had come to greet these two men. They were a rough lot, on the whole—men of the lowest type, swarthy and unclean. I saw hungry glances directed toward those black boxes, and I knew that, given sufficient cunning and address, I should not be the first by a long way to strike a blow for their acquisition. But of these others I had no fear. Gorty and Metzger knew their friends, knew them well enough not to trust them.

I walked back through the fog to my humble little flat in Adam street. Those were gloomy days, even for me, who cared little about the physical comforts of life. I was passing as Mr. Arthur Younghusband, LL. D., a cousin of the well-known solicitor of Lincoln's Inn, in town to consult works of reference at the British Museum. Day by day I walked to that gloomy mausoleum of dead knowledge, spent an hour or so there, and back to my rooms. No one dogged my footsteps. By devious ways I had shaken off all pursuit and suspicion. Yet life was a wearisome thing. I am not a man with many human weaknesses, but I should have welcomed a visit from Janet—a little dinner, perhaps, at the Cafe Royal, a peep into the world of many-colored pleasure outside of which my path lay. These things, however, I knew were not for me. Janet was watched, as I knew beyond a doubt: even if she were not, she had failed me in my last demand. Janet presented a problem to be solved.

On the third day after the arrival of Gorty and Metzger, I visited my solicitors, the firm of Younghusband, Nicholson and Younghusband, at Lincoln's Inn. My reputed cousin granted me an interview within a few minutes of my arrival. We spoke for a time of my studies and their progress. Then there was a pause. The door was closed; the walls of the room were thick.

"Things progress?" I demanded, leaning across his wide, untidy table.

Mr. Younghusband smiled benevolently. In these moments of direct speech I was accustomed to forget my assumed personality and to speak with all the quick incisiveness that was natural to me. My legal adviser, however, never altered his manner of reply or deportment. He was always the same, unctuous, legal, courtly.

"Your affairs are in excellent train," he assured me. "Of the two people in whom we are interested, one leaves, as we have surmised, for Manchester tonight; the other remains alone."

"They have made no arrangement with any bank yet?"

My companion shook his head.

"They are both, under the circumstances, suspicious," he said. "Their position, of course, is—er—peculiar. They are custodians of a hundred thousand pounds in gold, with which they hope to establish a few private credits in this country. On the other hand, the country to which they belong owes us something like a hundred times that amount. The have a somewhat natural fear that any bank with whom they might deposit their treasure might be disposed to hand it over to the government, or that the government, by some legal means, might attach it."

"Therefore," I observed, "it remains in their rooms?"

"Precisely! They consider it the lesser risk."

"And Gorty goes to Manchester tonight?"

"That is so," the lawyer murmured.

"So far all seems well," I said. "The great thing is that the gold has not been removed and that Metzger will be alone. There were other little details."

"Just so!" Mr. Younghusband assented, leaning back in his chair with his finger-tips pressed together. "So far as regards the setting of the affair, I think you will find it in order. Metzger and Gorty occupy Suite 89 at the Milan Hotel, which suite consists, as you know, of two bedrooms, a bathroom and a sitting-room. The sitting-room is on the extreme right-hand side of the suite, and the gold is kept in Mezger's bedroom, which opens from the sitting-room. The bathroom is between the two bedrooms."

"I have had the plan," I interrupted a little impatiently.

Mr. Younghusband declined to be hurried. He had the air of giving difficult legal advice on a technical point.

"Suite 90," he continued, "consists of a bedroom, bathroom and sitting-room only, and is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Jose de Miguel, very rich South Americans. They are leaving tonight by motorcar for Southampton to catch the steamer there for Buenos Aires in the morning."

"Their luggage is already packed?" I asked.

"Already packed," Mr. Younghusband agreed. "The porters have commented upon its weight."

"And Madam?"

"Appears to have fulfilled her task," was the somewhat hesitating answer.

I detected signs of uneasiness in my companion's speech, and I questioned him about it promptly.

"Have you doubts of the woman," I asked.

"None whatever," Mr. Younghusband assured me blandly. "At the same time, she is, without doubt, the weakest link in the chain. She has temperament enough—Metzger seems to have been an easy victim; but I should have had more confidence in the lady who visited me the other day."

"THERE IS ONE HOUR THAT MY HUSBAND WILL BE AWAY," SHE WHISPERED. "YOU MAY KISS ME."

"I can no longer put complete faith in my wife," I replied coldly.

Mr. Younghusband was started out of his dignified serenity of manner. He leaned across the table.

"What do you mean by that?" he demanded harshly. "Do you know that she has been here, the one place in London you should have been careful to keep her away from, if you had any doubts."

"I have no doubts whatever as to her fidelity," I declared. "You know what I mean when I say that, in the parlance of our friends, she has gone soft. It is a pity."

Mr. Younghusband seemed relieved but puzzled.

"A woman who could do what she did on the golf-links at Woking," he murmured reminiscently, "must have changed very much if she merits your present criticism."

The subject was by no means a pleasant one to me. I abandoned it.

"In any case," I reminded him, "she is in touch with Greyes, and he knows too much."

"Wonderful capacity for existence, that man," Mr. Younghusband remarked suavely.

Harsh deeds—I am not a lover of them. I seldom go out of my way to kill, or allow my subordinates to do so, if my ends can be obtained otherwise. At that moment, however, I felt a sudden resurgence into my brain of that one bloodthirsty desire of my life.

"As soon as this affair is safely concluded," I said, "and we are in funds once more, I shall take occasion to deal with Norman Greyes myself."

"It occurs to me that you would be well advised," my companion acquiesced. "The person in question possesses the one gift which might make him dangerous to us. He has imagination."

I nodded. I was tracing figures upon the blotting-paper, debating with myself different methods of dealing with Norman Greyes.

"Every channel which might lead to the firm of Younghusband, Nicholas and Younghusband," the lawyer continued meditatively, "seems, so far as human ingenuity could arrange it, permanently blocked, but a man with imagination who is not afraid to work on guesswork is always to be feared."

"It will not be my fault," I promised, as I took my leave, "if you have any cause to fear Norman Greyes after the next month or so."

That night, in the language of those forgotten war communiques, everything happened according to plan. At a quarter to nine Metzger, who was writing alone in his sittingroom, heard a soft knocking at the door which communicated with the adjoining suite. He rose promptly, locked the outside door of his own rooms, and softly withdrew the bolt of the door to the next suite. He stood there with an inviting smile upon his ugly face. Madam de Miguel laid a cautioning finger upon her somewhat overpainted lips as she stole over the threshold.

"There is one hour that my husband will be away," she whispered, gliding past him. "You may kiss me."

Alien Women Eager To Become U. S. Citizens

Washington—More than 1,500,000 aliens eligible for American naturalization already have been directed to citizenship training classes established by local school authorities throughout the United States in cooperation with the Bureau of Naturalization of the Department of Labor. The classes are conducted at night, and enable the aliens not only to obtain free the educational training necessary for approval of their citizenship petitions, but also to get information that will lead them to better jobs, higher pay and improved living conditions.

The Bureau has established a service through which candidates for citizenship are invited to attend the classes provided by local authorities for their instruction, and their names and addresses also are forwarded to the public school officials. The number of foreign residents thus reached, it is said, is necessarily limited to those who have declared their intention to become citizens, since the Labor Department lacks the names and addresses of those who have not filed petitions. It is believed, nevertheless, that free instruction facilities have been made available to many others through measures taken by local Americanization organizations, Boy Scouts, Young Men's Christian Associations, chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and other patriotic and civic societies.

Cards giving the records of the aliens attending the classes, bureau officials declare, add to the value of the work from a public view-point in that they give a basis for complete community surveys to determine needs in Americanization work.

The bureau receives almost daily letters from candidates for citizenpraising the service, and also gets a number of reports on the work of aliens taking advantage of the courses. Some of these reports, it is said show the progress made by candidates over 60 years of age who had resided in this country many years without taking steps to become citizens.

MOONSHINERS GET SPECIAL FAVOR IN ANTI-SEARCH BILL

SALOONS WOULD FLOURISH IF DRY LAW AMENDMENT GOES THROUGH ANTI-SALOOON COUNSEL ASSERTS

Madison, Wis.—The Sachtjen bill being strongly backed by anti-prohibition members of the Wisconsin legislature "places all moonshiners and boot-leggers in a favored class exempting them from provisions governing all other law violators coming under the general search and seizure law," B. M. Hicks, legislative counsel for Anti- Saloon league, said in a statement today. It is on this bill that the principal wet and dry fight of the session will be centered.

"Saloons would run riot should the Sachtjen proposal be enacted into law" the statement said, basing this assertion on the section of the bill which would require an affidavit of sale before a search warrant could be issued.

"Under this special moonshiners permit all that a saloon keeper will have to do is establish a residence in the building in which the drinks are sold by having a bar tender room there," it added.

Blaine's Own Provision

"Governor Blaine says in his message that the present search and seizure law hangs as a threat and menace over every home. The search and seizure law is the one written into the governor's bill known as the Severson law, the bill prepared at his request.

"The Severson law does not create a new law on search and seizure but simply extends the same law which has been in force here for years, to cover the moonshiners and bootleggers. This law is no menace over my home because I am obeying the law. I wonder why the governor regards it as a menace over his home.

"No residence can be searched without a warrant and the warrant must be based on an affidavit of manufacture for sale, or possession for sale, or sale." In other words the home must be used as a place for commercializing the traffic before a warrant can be be issued for its search.

Petitions bearing nearly 50,000 names are awaiting presentation to the leglature in protest against the passage of the Sachtjen bill amending the search and seizure section of the Severson prohibition enforcement law, the anti-saloon league announces.

The association against the prohibition amendment is preparing a similar petition urging their stand before the legislature.

State Dry Enforcement Appropriation Continues

Madison, Wis.—The appropriation to the Wisconsin prohibition department is a continuing appropriation that will automatically run until specifically changed by the legislture, Ralph M. Hoyt, deputy attorney general advised J. B. Borden secretary of the state board of public affairs in an opinion today.

This opinion of the deputy attorney general assures support to the prohibition department, unless both houses of the legislature and the governor approve a curtailment of its funds. Hostility of the assembly would probably prevent enactment of an appropriation bill should it be necessary to again grant an appropriation before the department could function.

GERMANS KILLED AS FRENCH OPEN FIRE ON CROWD

INVADERS USE MACHINE GUNS ON WORKERS IN KRUPP WORKS AT ESSEN; SIX KILLED AND TWENTY INJURED

(By Associated Press)

Berlin, Germany, Mar. 31—Six German workers at the Krupp plant in Essen have been killed and twenty injured in a conflict with the French military, says a Central News dispatch from Essen today.

The trouble occurred through the French unexpectedly proceeding to occupy certain Krupp motor works, whereupon the workers stopped the machines and went outside to offer opposition, the message states.

Troops Threatened

The officer in charge of the French tried to persuade the men to return to duty, but they refused and surrounded the troops, threatening them with attack unless they withdrew. The officer pointed out that he must carry out his order, but the workers were obdurate, declaring they would defend their plant.

Four machine guns then opened fire, adds the message, and six workers fell dead, while twenty were seriously wounded. The remainder scattered and the French then proceeded to occupy the works.

Will Expel Strikers

Duesseldorf, German, Mar. 31—General DeGoutte's proclamation that all strikers in the German railway works in the occupied zone must either go to work or be expelled, found the allies in the possession of all Ruhr and Rhine rail lines except those in the British area.

Enforcement of the order it seems, will offer transportation officials something of a problem, for approximately half a million persons, including families of the men, may be affected. It is expected that the process of expulsion will take several weeks and special transportation to the frontier must be provided.

Ten billion marks and four hundred thousand French francs which the French custom officers siezed in an automobile at Hoechat yesterday, will be used toward defraying the expenses of French troops on the left bank of the Rhine. The money was being shipped to Weisbaden by a Frankfort bank.

Ray And Buker To Race In Feature Race Friday

Chicago—Individual rivalry between Joie Ray, middle distance runner, carrying the colors of the Illinois A. C., and Ray Buker, University of Chicago divinity student, his teammate, who won from the "king of the milers" here last week, was regarded as one of the interesting athletic duels that will be fought here Friday night in the Central A. A. U. indoor track championship tournament. The two were entered in the mile run. Buker's victory over Ray was made in 4:21, considered fast time for the mile.

Rollie Williams Offered Coaches Job At Millikin

Madison—Rollie Williams, eight-letter basketball, baseball and football star of the University of Wisconsin, has been offered the position of athletic director at Millikin university, Decatur, Ill., at a salary of $4,000.

Rollie is weighing the Millikin offer with one by the Kansas Agricultural college.

Rollie has won eight letters in athletics so far, three in football in three consecutive years, three in basketball and two in baseball. A new Wisconsin record will be set if Williams wins his ninth "W" in baseball this year.

Lefty Williams Dying In Chicago Hospital

Chicago.—Claude (Lefty) Williams who was instrumental in winning championships and world's championship for the White Sox before the scandal in 1919 wrecked his career, is lying at the point of death at the Columbus hospital. He was in a state of coma Thursday night and his physicians, Dr. Kegel and Storer, have little hope for his recovery. Williams was stricken with pneumonia three days ago and his condition became serious immediately.

Northwestern Given Big Sum Annually By Gary

(By Associated Press)

Evanston, Ill., Mar. 31—Albert H. Gary of New York, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Company, and an alumnus of Northwestern University law school, has given that school $100,000 income which will go toward the purchase and repair of law books, it became known here today.

Judge Gary has donated various sums annuall yfor the upkeep and purchase of books for the school.

Baseball Players Union In Request For Recognition

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, Ill., Mar. 31—The Chicago National Baseball Players Association union of the baseball world, today by letter appealed to the National Baseball Commission for recognition and the right to sit as a representative that body.

Raymond J. Cannon of Milwaukee, attorney for the players association, directed the letter to the National Baseball Commission. The association had ceased to function when former Federal Judge Landis was appointed commissioner of baseball, it was understood.

The commission is composed of Commissioner Landis, President John P. Heydler of the National League and President Ban Johnson of the American League.

Former Point Outfielder Shows Big League Stuff

Judging from the comments of Manning Vaughn, sporting writer of the Milwaukee Sentinel, Al Simmons, the young outfielder who crashed the old apple with such wicked results during the 1921 baseball season with the Stevens Point team, is more than making good with Harry Clark's Brewers at their spring training camp at Troy, Alabama. A portion of the clipping follows:

Of the young athletes who were at Caruthersville, Mo., a year ago, the most improved player in camp is Al Simmons, pride of Rue De Mitchell and other south side boulevards.

Twelve months ago, Simmons a graduate of Milwaukee's corner lots, was as green, speaking in baseball terms, as the flag of St. Patrick. He was a big, husky youth, strong as a professional weight juggler, took a fearful punch at the ball; but his baseball knowledge was nex. He lacked the baseball finish required of class AA performers—in other words looked like a diamond in the rough, but that was all.

TENNIS OFFICIALS ADD NEW TITLES TO 1923 PROGRAM

THREE NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP EVENTS ADDED TO COURT PROGRAM OF THE U. S. LAWN TENNIS ASSOCIATION

New York.—Three national championship events involving six titles in singles and doubles, have been added to the 1923 court program of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

The addition of these events—the national interscholastic, municipal, and girls' hard court championships—increases to 36 the total number of titles at stake this year, a figure which represents at the greatest array of national championship in the history of the net game and gives further proof of the rapid development of the sport.

Revive Interscholastics

The national interscholastic are being revived by the U. S. L. T. A. this year after a lapse since 1915. The other two tournaments, however, are innovations and promise to widen appreciably the scope of the court game.

Particular interest is attached to the municipal tournament. Encouragement of public court playing is one of the features of this year's program under the administration of Dwight F. Davis donor of the international team trophy and president of the U. S. L. T. A. Mr. Davis was a pioneer in the development of the municipal game in St. Louis.

Local and regional tournaments are planned as preliminaries to the national municipal championships with the idea that leading players in all sections of the country may thus be selected to compete for the national titles.

The interscholastics, which probably will be held in connection with the intercollegiate championships, were first started in 1891. The list of victors until the tournament was dropped in 1915 reveals some of the most prominent names in American tennis history, a fact which has influenced officials in restoring the tournament as one means of developing new talent.

Many Title Events

R. D. Wrenn, national singles champion in 1896 and 1897 and former president of the U. S. L. T. A., won the first interscholastic title in 1891. Other prominent players who captured the championship on their way to greater fame included: Beals C. Wright, national champion in 1905 Maurice E. McLoughlin, national champion in 1912 and 1913; Irving C. Wright, Nathaniel W. Niles, Wallace Johnson, George M. Church and Karl Behr. The last tournament, in 1915, was won by Harold Throckmorton.

The list of other championship events on this year's record calendar includes: Men's and Women's singles and doubles on indoor, clay and turf courts; veterans singles and doubles on turf; intercollegiate singles and doubles; juniors and boys' singles and doubles on turf an indood courts; girls' singles and doubles on turf; mixed doubles on indoor clay and turf courts; and fathers and sons' doubles.

W. E. Sanderson, of the New York State College of Forestry, has a record of having planted nearly 1,200,000 baby trees in demonstration forests.

Charles Ray

Charles Ray will be seen at the Palace Theater Easter Sunday and Monday in his latest and best picture, "Alias Julius Caesar." The many admirers of Ray will be highly pleased with this picture, if press notices from all over the country are to be taken as authority for the quality of the picture.

Marshall Neilan took his entire company to Mexico City for photography of Mexican scenes in "The Eternal Three," the Goldwyn picture dedicated to the nobility of the medical profession. Claire Windsor and Hobart Bosworth preceded the other players.

King Vidor, now directing "Three Wise Fools" for Goldwyn, recently celebrated his twenty-third birthday.

Blanche Sweet's first leading man, Charles H. West, is now appearing in his husband's picture—Marshall Neilan's "The Eternal Three." West was Miss Sweet's chief support in her first leading part under D. W. Griffith.

Claire Windsor was born in Cawker City, Kansas. She has never been in New York City.

"Notoriety" with an all star cast including Rod LaRocque, Mary Alden, Mona Lisa, Maurine Powers, Richard Travers and others, will be shown at the Palace Theater, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, April 3, 4 and 5.

On Wednesday and Thursday, April 4 and 5 Betty Compson in "The Green Temptation" will be shown at the Ideal Theatre. Mahlon Hamilton and Theodore Kosloff also play leading parts in this picture, "The Green Temptation" is one of Miss Compson's latest and best pictures.

Mabel Coleman, new film actress, recently was adjudged to have the most beautiful hands in California in a Los Angeles contest.

D. R. O. Hansell, who plays the part of Alaric in the Metro version of "Peg O' My Heart," in support of Laurette Taylor, is very, very British. Even a visitor to the Metro Studios discovered this and felt called upon to remark:

"He has quite an English accent, hasn't he?"

"Has he! You can almost photograph it," answered the cameraman.

Moscow's Prosperity Is Regarded As Superficial

Moscow.—The surface comfort which Moscow now shows to foreign visitors, and the prosperity which her naive profiteers enjoy, is not reflected in the lives of working men and the other native residents who make up the bulk of her population.

All are living better than last year, but recent statistics of workmen's districts show that instead of the approximately 15 square yards of living space which is the legal allotment for each person, many workingmen's families average only one and a half square yards of living space for each person, and that many have to sleep in relays on the basis of one bed for four persons.

In one children's home 80 per cent of the inmates had lived so long on a scanty diet that they had utterly forgotten even the taste of milk, meat and fats. In one district a survey of these homes showed 85 per cent of the children suffering from tuberculosis or predisposed to that malady, because of undernourishment and overcrowding.

Vendetta begins between Michael Sayers, noted criminal and SIR NORMAN GREYES, once of Scotland Yard, when Sayers' beautiful housemaid, JANET, saves him from Sir Norman by shooting dead the officer sent to arrest him. Janet becomes Sayers' wife and accomplice. While Sir Norman is living at his country house the police ask him to help capture a criminal whom they believe to be at the head of a dangerous gang. On his way to London, Greyes' car is stopped and he is shot through the shoulder. Greyes asks Janet to dine with him. Janet accepts. Acting upon Michael's command Janet puts poison in Sir Norman's coffee, but regrets her act and purposely upsets the cup. Sayers tells this episode:

I was at St. Pancras Station to meet Gorty and Metzger on their arrival in England. I saw the seven black tin boxes with brass clamps, handed out of the guard's van and placed on the roof of a taxicab. I knew as though it were foredoomed that the contents of those boxes would be mine before the week was out. I felt certain, too, that one at least of the two men would fight to death before I obtained possession of them. They were well worth it, however.

It was a foggy night, and I lingered with perfect safety on the outskirts of the little throng of people who had come to greet these two men. They were a rough lot, on the whole—men of the lowest type, swarthy and unclean. I saw hungry glances directed toward those black boxes, and I knew that, given sufficient cunning and address, I should not be the first by a long way to strike a blow for their acquisition. But of these others I had no fear. Gorty and Metzger knew their friends, knew them well enough not to trust them.

I walked back through the fog to my humble little flat in Adam street. Those were gloomy days, even for me, who cared little about the physical comforts of life. I was passing as Mr. Arthur Younghusband, LL. D., a cousin of the well-known solicitor of Lincoln's Inn, in town to consult works of reference at the British Museum. Day by day I walked to that gloomy mausoleum of dead knowledge, spent an hour or so there, and back to my rooms. No one dogged my footsteps. By devious ways I had shaken off all pursuit and suspicion. Yet life was a wearisome thing. I am not a man with many human weaknesses, but I should have welcomed a visit from Janet—a little dinner, perhaps, at the Cafe Royal, a peep into the world of many-colored pleasure outside of which my path lay. These things, however, I knew were not for me, Janet was watched, as I knew beyond a doubt; even if she were not, she had failed me in my last demand. Janet presented a problem to be solved.

On the third day after the arrival of Gorty and Metzger, I visited my solicitors, the firm of Younghusband, Nicholson and Younghusband, at Lincoln's Inn. My reputed cousin granted me an interview within a few minutes of my arrival. We spoke for a time of my studies and their progress. Then there was a pause. The door was closed; the walls of the room were thick.

"Things progress?" I demanded, leaning across his wide, untidy table.

Mr. Younghusband smiled benevolently. In these moments of direct speech I was accustomed to forget my assumed personality and to speak with all the quick incisiveness that was natural to me. My legal adviser, however, never altered his manner of reply or deportment. He was always the same, unctuous, legal, courtly.

"Your affairs are in excellent train," he assured me. "Of the two people in whom we are interested, one leaves, as we have surmised, for Manchester tonight; the other remains alone."

"They have made no arrangement with any bank yet?"

My companion shook his head.

"They are both, under the circumstances, suspicious," he said. "Their position, of course, is—er—peculiar. They are custodians of a hundred thousand pounds in gold, with which they hope to establish a few private credits in this country. On the other hand, the country to which they belong owes us something like a hundred times that amount. The have a somewhat natural fear that any bank with whom they might deposit their treasure might be disposed to hand it over to the government, or that the government, by some legal means, might attach it."

"Therefore," I observed, "it remains in their rooms?"

"Precisely! They consider it the lesser risk."

"And Gorty goes to Manchester tonight?"

"That is so," the lawyer murmured.

"So far all seems well," I said. "The great thing is that the gold has not been removed and that Metzger will be alone. There were other little details."

"Just so!" Mr. Younghusband assented, leaning back in his chair with his finger-tips pressed together. "So far as regards the setting of the affair, I think you will find it in order. Metzger and Gorty occupy Suite 89 at the Milan Hotel, which suite consists, as you know, of two bedrooms, a bathroom and a sitting-room. The sitting-room is on the extreme right-hand side of the suite, and the gold is kept in Mezger's bedroom, which opens from the sitting-room. The bathroom is between the two bedrooms."

"I have had the plan," I interrupted a little impatiently.

Mr. Younghusband declined to be hurried. He had the air of giving difficult legal advice on a technical point.

"Suite 90," he continued, "consists of a bedroom, bathroom and sitting-room only, and is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Jose de Miguel, very rich South Americans. They are leaving tonight by motorcar for Southampton to catch the steamer there for Buenos Aires in the morning."

"Their luggage is already packed?" I asked.

"Already packed," Mr. Younghusband agreed. "The porters have commented upon its weight."

"And Madam?"

"Appears to have fulfilled her task," was the somewhat hesitating answer.

I detected signs of uneasiness in my companion's speech, and I questioned him about it promptly.

"Have you doubts of the woman," I asked.

"None whatever," Mr. Younghusband assured me blandly. "At the same time, she is, without doubt, the weakest link in the chain. She has temperament enough—Metzger seems to have been an easy victim; but I should have had more confidence in the lady who visited me the other day."

"I can no longer put complete faith in my wife," I replied coldly.

Mr. Younghusband was started out of his dignified serenity of manner. He leaned across the table.

"What do you mean by that?" he demanded harshly. "Do you know that she has been here, the one place in London you should have been careful to keep her away from, if you had any doubts"

"I have no doubts whatever as to her fidelity," I declared. "You know what I mean when I say that, in the parlance of our friends, she has gone soft. It is a pity."

Mr. Younghusband seemed relieved but puzzled.

"A woman who could do what she did on the golf-links at Woking," he murmured reminiscently, "must have changed very much if she merits your present criticism."

The subject was by no means a pleasant one to me. I abandoned it.

"In any case," I reminded him, "she is in touch with Greyes, and he knows too much."

"Wonderful capacity for existence, that man," Mr. Younghusband remarked suavely.

Harsh deeds—I am not a lover of them. I seldom go out of my way to kill, or allow my subordinates to do so, if my ends can be obtained otherwise. At that moment, however, I felt a sudden resurgence into my brain of that one bloodthirsty desire of my life.

"As soon as this affair is safely concluded," I said, "and we are in funds once more, I shall take occasion to deal with Norman Greyes myself."

"It occurs to me that you would be well advised," my companion acquiesced. "The person in question possesses the one gift which might make him dangerous to us. He has imagination."

I nodded. I was tracing figures upon the blotting-paper, debating with myself different methods of dealing with Norman Greyes.

"Every channel which might lead to the firm of Younghusband, Nicholas and Younghusband," the lawyer continued meditatively, "seems, so far as human ingenuity could arrange it, permanently blocked, but a man with imagination who is not afraid to work on guesswork is always to be feared."

"It will not be my fault," I promised, as I took my leave, "if you have any cause to fear Norman Greyes after the next month or so."

That night, in the language of those forgotten war communiques, everything happened according to plan. At a quarter to nine Metzger, who was writing alone in his sittingroom, heard a soft knocking at the door which communicated with the adjoining suite. He rose promptly, locked the outside door of his own rooms, and softly withdrew the bolt of the door to the next suite. He stood there with an inviting smile upon his ugly face. Madam de Miguel laid a cautioning finger upon her somewhat overpainted lips as she stole over the threshold.

"There is one hour that my husband will be away," she whispered, gliding past him. "You may kiss me."

Alien Women Eager To Become U. S. Citizens

Washington—More than 1,500,000 aliens eligible for American naturalization already have been directed to citizenship training classes established by local school authorities throughout the United States in cooperation with the Bureau of Naturalization of the Department of Labor. The classes are conducted at night, and enable the aliens not only to obtain free the educational training necessary for approval of their citizenship petitions, but also to get information that will lead them to better jobs, higher pay and improved living conditions.

The Bureau has established a service through which candidates for citizenship are invited to attend the classes provided by local authorities for their instruction, and their names and addresses also are forwarded to the public school officials. The number of foreign residents thus reached, it is said, is necessarily limited to those who have declared their intention to become citizens, since the Labor Department lacks the names and addresses of those who have not filed petitions. It is believed, nevertheless, that free instruction facilities have been made available to many others through measures taken by local Americanization organizations, Boy Scouts, Young Men's Christian Associations, chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and other patriotic and civic societies.

Cards giving the records of the aliens attending the classes, bureau officials declare, add to the value of the work from a public view-point in that they give a basis for complete community surveys to determine needs in Americanization work.

The bureau receives almost daily letters from candidates for citizenpraising the service, and also gets a number of reports on the work of aliens taking advantake of the iourses Some of these reports, it is said show the progress made by candidates over 60 years of age who had resided in this iountry many years without taking steps to become citizens.

MOONSHINERS GET SPECIAL FAVOR IN ANTI-SEARCH BILL

SALOONS WOULD FLOURISH IF DRY LAW AMENDMENT GOES THROUGH ANTI-SALOOON COUNSEL ASSERTS

Madison, Wis.—The Sachtjen bill being strongly backed by anti-prohibition members of the Wisconsin legislature "places all moonshiners and boot-leggers in a favored class exempting them from provisions governing all other law violators coming under the general search and seizure law," B. M. Hicks, legislative, counsel for Anti- Saloon league, said in a statement today. It is on this bill that the principal wet and dry fight of the session will be centered.

"Saloons would run riot should the Sachtjen proposal be enacted into law" the statement said, basing this assertion on the section of the bill which would require an affidavit of sale before a search warrant could be issued.

"Under this special moonshiners permit all that a saloon keeper will have to do is establish a residence in the building in which the drinks are sold by having a bar tender room there," it added.

Blaine's Own Provision

"Governor Blaine says in his message that the present search and seizure law hangs as a threat and menace over every home. The search and seizure law is the one written into the governor's bill known as the Severson law, the bill prepared at his request.

"The Severson law does not create a new law on search and seizure but simply extends the same law which has been in force here for years, to cover the moonshiners and bootleggers. This law is no menace over my home because I am obeying the law. I wonder why the governor regards it as a menace over his home.

"No residence can be searched without a warrant and the warrant must be based on an affidavit of manufacture for sale, or possession for sale, or sale." In other words the home must be used as a place for commercializing the traffic before a warrant can be be issued for its search.

Petitions bearing nearly 50,000 names are awaiting presentation to the legislature in protest against the passage of the Sachtjen bill amending the search and seizure section of the Severson prohibition enforcement law, the anti-saloon league announces.

The association against the prohibition amendment is preparing a similar petition urging their stand before the legislature.

State Dry Enforcement Appropriation Continues

Madison, Wis.—The appropriation to the Wisconsin prohibition department is a continuing appropriation that will automatically run until specifically changed by the legislture, Ralph M. Hoyt, deputy attorney general advised J. B. Borden secretary of the state board of public affairs in an opinion today.

This opinion of the deputy attorney general assures support to the prohibition department, unless both houses of the legislature and the governor approve a curtailment of its funds. Hostility of the assembly would probably prevent enactment of an appropriation bill should it be necessary to again grant an appropriation before the department could function.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY

The One Thing Above All Others That Every Depositor Wants and Every Real Banker Seeks to Provide

It is the solemn duty of every financial institution to use every means possible to protect the funds, securities and valuables entrusted to its care. To offer that feeling of absolute security is positively due the patron to justify his confidence. The Bank must actually protect, or it betrays.

The Citizens National Bank has carried and continues to carry the best insurance protection it is possible to secure covering loss by burglary and daylight hold-up, whether the attack be against our own property or against the property and valuables of others entrusted to our care. We have felt equal concern for the safety of both, and have spent money freely to afford them both protection.

But the management felt that we had not done our full duty until every possible precaution was taken—until our patrons had the very best protection it was possible to obtain.

That, obviously, included some form of burglar alarm system, such as is maintained by practically all the banks in the large cities, and is being adopted rapidly as well by progressive country banks, especially since the great increase in attempted burglaries during the past few years.

A careful study of the situation, and investigation of the methods employed by the banks in the cities and larger towns, has led us to install one of the most modern and efficient Electric Burglar Alarm Systems and the ONLY Thermo-Electric Protection in existence. It is acknowledged as being absolutely Burglar-Proof, and is a fitting climax of positive security with our modern Steel Vault. This system is manufactured by the O. B. McClintock Company of Minneapolis, which fully guarantees that the system cannot be defeated by the most expert burglar.

There are over 6000 of these systems in use in the United States and in no case has a burglar ever succeeded in his attempts to rob a bank so equipped. In fact, the attacks upon the banks with the system installed continue to grow less as time passes, though the number of systems rapidly increases, indicating that the yeggmen are beginning to pass by institutions which carry the familiar sign indicating that every modern device that genius can provide has been called into service to defeat their efforts.

Safety and Service — The Two Strong Pillars on Which Our Business Rests

INSURANCE COMPANIES INDORSE THE SYSTEM

One of the very best indorsements of our Burglar Alarm System is that given by the Old Line Burglary Insurance Companies. Moscow's Prosperity Is Regarded As Superficial

Moscow.—The surface comfort which Moscow now shows to foreign visitors, and the prosperity which her naive profiteers enjoy, is not reflected in the lives of working men and the other native residents who make up the bulk of her population.

All are living better than last year, but recent statistics of workmen's districts show that instead of the approximately 15 square yards of living space which is the legal allotment for each person, many workingmen's families average only one and a half square yards of living space for each person, and that many have to sleep in relays on the basis of one bed for four persons.

In one children's home 80 per cent of the inmates had lived so long on a scanty diet that they had utterly forgotten even the taste of milk, meat and fats. In one district a survey of these homes showed 85 per cent of the children suffering from tuberculosis, or predisposed to that malady because of undernourishment and overcrowding.
